THE MUSINGS OF THE PASTOR

Earlier this month Bishop Frank Dewane of Venice, Florida, chair of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops' (USCCB) Committee on Domestic Justice and Human Development, urged Congress to fix tax policies that were fundamentally flawed as the House of Representatives and Senate tried to reach agreement on a final bill. In November he had written to them and had proposed six moral principles to assist them in their discussion. In my column last week I covered the first three of these principles. In today's column I want to talk about the last three principles.

4. Adequate revenue for the sake of the common good. Resources are required for society to defend and promote the common good. The USCCB has affirmed that "the tax system should raise adequate revenues to pay for the needs of society, especially to meet the basic needs of the poor" (Economic Justice for All ("EJA"), 202). In carrying out its responsibilities, "[g]overnments may levy the taxes necessary to meet these responsibilities, and citizens have a moral obligation to pay those taxes" (EJA, 123).

5. Avoiding cuts to poverty programs to finance tax reform. The loss of revenue created by tax cuts should not be made up by cuts to programs that serve those most in need. Recent proposals by leaders in Washington indicate an openness to steep cuts to the social safety net and discretionary programs that serve those in poverty. At the same time, Congress is seriously considering increases in military spending. Legislators must avoid creating a situation in which cuts to programs for the poor will be made to seem inevitable and necessary, whether in the short or longer term, in order to make tax cuts possible.

6. Incentivize charitable giving and development. Charitable giving is strongly incentivized in the present tax code, and the "United Framework" states that the charitable giving deduction will be preserved. Perhaps unintentionally, though, the plan risks crippling charitable giving. Academic research predicts a multi-billion dollar drop in charitable giving if the standard deduction were doubled. The elimination of the estate tax would further reduce incentives to give. Tax credits to encourage efforts like the development of affordable housing also appear at risk. Removing the incentives to give to charities, while also cutting anti-poverty programs would doubly burden the most vulnerable members of our communities. Proposals to remedy some of these challenges have been offered and should be seriously considered.

Bishop Dewane recognizes that national tax policy is complex and its effects are far-reaching. He urges Congress to recognize the critical obligation of creating a just framework aimed at economic security of all people, especially the least of these. Until next week,

The Third Sunday of Advent

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

How can I bring a “year of favor” to the world, to the community, those I know?

A BIG THANK YOU TO ALL WHO INCREASED THEIR GIVING TO OUR PARISH COMMUNITY

Thank you to everyone who increased their giving to St. Francis of Assisi Church following the Offertory Stewardship Appeal last month. Indeed I am grateful to everyone for the generosity of their gifts, whether that be in volunteerism, expertise or financial support. By the way, it’s not too late to step up and offer a financial gift to the parish. I invite you to return a Commitment Form or Faith Direct Enrollment Form either in the collection basket or to the Parish Office before December 31, so we can continue formulating our budget for the latter half of the fiscal year that ends June 30. ~ Fr. John

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED TO SORT, HANG UP CLOTHING AT INTERFAITH WORKS CLOTHING CENTER

Contact Volunteer and Outreach Coordinator Rachel Sanborn at rsanborn@iworksmc.org or register on the organization's volunteer page at www.iworksmc.org/volunteer/.

BISHOP ROBERT BARRON TAKES ON SOCIAL JUSTICE AND EVANGELIZATION

For those of you with an interest in social justice, a video by Bishop Robert Barron on "Social Justice and Evangelization" may prove interesting. In it, the auxiliary bishop of Los Angeles draws comparisons between St. Peter Claver, the 17th century humanitarian who cared for the needs of slaves as they arrived in Cartagena, Spain, from Africa and Immanuel Kant, the German philosopher who figures centrally in modern philosophy. See the video at <https://youtu.be/5KaDSS-kK0w>.

CHRISTMAS WELCOME IN THE PEW

We all have our favorite seats at the dining room or kitchen table. We often have to shift our seats when we sit down to Christmas dinner because there are more people. Some of these people we haven't seen for some time. Some are brand new to our table. Maybe a co-worker or school friend of one of our children who couldn't get home for Christmas will be joining us. It might be a neighbor who is alone for Christmas. We all have been flexible for the feast. And, we go out of our way to try to make the person feel as welcome as we can.

All of us can be encouraged to be flexible when we come to Christmas Mass. Many of our brothers and sisters in the Catholic Family who we have not seen for some time will be with us for the celebration. There may be some who have never been with us in our parish.

For those of us who attend regularly we should move as far to the center of the pew when we come on Christmas. Our usual seat may be on the aisle, but for the sake of "company," these aisle seats should be the last ones filled.
